

Bulletin on New Zealand Earthquake

This morning a 7.0 magnitude earthquake was reported 19 miles northwest of Christchurch, on the South Island of New Zealand.

Preliminary reports provided by 2degrees, the New Zealand wireless service provider in which Trilogy owns a controlling stake, indicate that its staff is safe and unhurt. Furthermore, the majority of the network was unaffected, with all but 4 of the 105 sites serving Christchurch functioning normally. Most sites continue to operate on electrical power and key sites have additional emergency backup generators.

According to Eric Hertz, Chief Executive of 2degrees, "Our network is fully operational and our customers can make calls and send texts as they would normally."
