

Earthquake in Haiti
January 12, 2010

This afternoon a 7.0 earthquake was reported near the Port-au-Prince area of Haiti. At this time we have very little information about the damage, injuries and impacts on the region. Our team in Haiti, which operates the wireless carrier Voilà, has been working nonstop to assess the damage and impact to our network as we know the community greatly relies upon on us for communication; we can confirm that the Voilà network continues to be operational in this time of crisis.

Initial reports indicate that our network has sustained some damage; as our current focus is the safety and security of our people, we are unable to provide an accurate assessment of the impact at this time.

As we gather additional information, we will post updates to our website: www.trilogy-international.com
